Independent Living Centers: Meaningful Connections

Social Connection Awareness Week

How do accessibility, technology, and independence help us build meaningful connections?

Join Gerald Hay during Social Connection Awareness to explore the role of Independent Living Centers (ILCs) in supporting people with disabilities, strengthening community connections, and creating a greater sense of belonging. Learn how assistive technology can increase independence, participation, and opportunities to connect with others- both in person and virtually.

This presentation will also explore the possibilities and the limitations of technology and the importance of designing inclusive spaces and experiences that help everyone participate and feel connected.
